Praise for the book from media:

"From the best food on campus to the best professors in the classroom... This is what kids currently in these colleges say about these schools, and who could be the better source of that information?"

NBC TODAY

"If you want to know what a college is like, you can check on its website or visit its campus, but to get the inside scoop from those who know best—from the students—well, that's what The Princeton Review did."

ABC Good Morning America

"A great book because the colleges are reviewed by the students who go there. This book is eminently useful and very very readable. Plus—it's a bargain."

CNN Morning News

"The most efficient of the college guides. Provides brief, entertaining profiles larded with Zagat-like quotes from students."

Rolling Stone

"Our favorite college guidebook."

Seventeen

"The real side of the college experience...students discuss the cafeteria food to the parties to the professors to the financial assistance."

BlackAmericaWeb.com

"The Top 20 Lists are a must-see."

Harvard Crimson

"Exhaustively researched."

Christian Science Monitor

"A good guide known for its student rankings of schools. The off-beat indexes, along with the chattily written descriptions of each school, provide a colorful picture of each campus."

The New York Times

"Bigger than Shakespeare! Bolder than Mark Twain!! Badder than Jane Austin!!! A must-read in the modern high school. It's the definitive guide to 'The Best Colleges' in the country!"

The Portland Oregonian
